ABSTRACT

In the present study impact of using human resources at the time of teaching history in degree colleges is studied. Total 250 students and 50 degree college lecturers teaching history in 25 degree colleges in Chitradurga district are selected for the study. Two questionnaires are prepared for the students studying Karnataka history and to the teachers who are teaching Karnataka history. The questions are expecting open and closed type answer. After collecting data it was analyzed by using percentage technique. It is found out that most of the college teachers are inviting important senior lecturers and persons to interact with degree college students about Karnataka history. After listening to the speech of senior lecturers and persons, students have received more information and important experience about Karnataka history.

INTRODUCTION

In all the higher education institutions, history subject is taught at all the levels. Learning about historical facts is very important to all the students. Without studying history subject students cannot understand other subjects. In this regard teachers teaching history should follow different methods and techniques. To teach history all the teachers have to utilize sources available in the community and nature. But most of the college teachers are not utilizing natural resources, human resources, mass media and other resources properly.

IMPORTANCE OF THE STUDY

The researcher is teaching 'Methods of Teaching History and Civics' subject to B.Ed. students. He was also interacted with the degree college history lecturers of the same campus. After discussion with many degree college teachers it was found that most of the degree college teachers are not effectively using different resources available in the community. Hence, study of this problem is very important.

OBJECTIVE OF THE STUDY

1. To identify the resource persons and senior lecturers available in Chitradurga district.
2. To find out the extent of utilization of the services of available resource persons and senior lecturers in teaching history to the degree college students.
3. To study the behavioral changes after interacting with resource persons.

STATEMENT OF THE PROBLEM

A Study of Proper Utilization of Human Resource in Teaching History in Degree Colleges.

Most of the colleges have invited important persons to present special lectures relating to Karnataka history and Indian history. As the history subject contains incidents happened in previous years or centuries the students can't depend only on text books or reference books. They require such important information from persons who can narrate historical facts interestingly. It is also happy to note that most of the colleges have tried their level best to invite local persons to explain about Karnataka history and Indian history. From the above data, it is clear that special lectures of the resource persons helped degree college students to get more information about Karnataka history, received more information about local history and got unique learning experiences .

Every year fifth semester of Degree College commence from first week of July. The history department staff has to decide the topic of special lectures and resource persons to be invited. Decision relating special lecture programmers including dates to be finalized in the first week of July. Immediately after such staff meeting head of the department of history has to announce details of such program mentioning date, topic, name of the resource person and venue on students' notice board. Such advance announcement will help students to get more details of such programmes and get benefit of it. Each degree college has to make such arrangements in advance.

FINDINGS OF THE STUDY

It is happy to note that most of the colleges have invited senior lecturers and local resource persons to present more details about Karnataka and Indian history. Through this study it is also confirmed that most of the students have received important information about India and Karnataka history and students got new learning experiences through such special lectures. It is worthwhile to note that each special lecture helped degree college students to collect new information about Indian and Karnataka history and interaction with resource persons was also more effective.

CONCLUSION

In this study use of services of senior lecturers and local resource persons helped students to get new learning experiences. If number of such special lecture increased, the students will be getting new information about Indian history and teachers will be confident about academic development of their students.
