ABSTRACT

Most of the women and adult girls are facing domestic violence not only in their homes and relationships but in their public spaces because of poor choices in urban design and management of those spaces. This paper explores about the women who was strong enough in carrier but not in life. She lost everything in her life by the name of love, because women has no safety in the world to live, if a women are alone then they could not survive in the country. Some of the men who treats brutally on handling women because women are soft by nature and also they longs for pure love but a very few men are taking advantage and misusing them. On a restricted level women must be trained by government or qualified civil society organizations to motivate non-violent processes and build networks in communities. Both men and women must be trained equally on gender based violence. Change is important in local structures to introduce gender-sensitive initiatives that gain society as a whole and change mindsets of the people.

Keywords: violence, restriction, manipulation, brutal, equal education, optimistic etc...

Women have no protection in the modern world both spheres; they are living risk circumstances in and around the home. Most of the women and grown girls are facing domestic violence not only in their homes and also in relationships, but also in public spaces due to poor choices in urban design and poor management of those spaces. This paper explores about the women who was strong enough in carrier but not in life. She lost everything in her life by the name of love, because women has no protection in the world to live, if a women are alone then they could not survive in the country.

That's the way women are, always the same type for the love command and for the most global project of all, against which environmental pollution and world peace are nothing: marriage. They all want it. Women and marriage, that's the perfect combination, especially in the country, where there aren't many distractions and you soon get enough of them. (Greed 23)

Gender based violence is a huge issue for human settlements, it is a central concern vis-à-vis women participation in urban development nowadays but men tries to pull them down in all fields. In the novel Greed Kurt Janisch, policeman who was the antagonist of the novel, Kurt is completely dominated by a king of greed like land or property of others so he tries the pull down Gerti's carrier. Basically men have a power of attracting women with their honey words in order to make the women dependent with their skills.

A good-looking and seemingly light-hearted man, the country policeman, just the sort we women like. Something to work with. It's not just to keep world peace that men dish out a load of lies to women, to make them dependent, while women indeed have something better to offer, all their thinking and feeling and a lot of things made of brightly colored wools. It's understandable, of course, that we, especially those of us with the older sex organs, who haven't seen much through the little escape hatches of the body, must remain strangers to ourselves nevertheless! We love-hungry ladies (Greed 4)

God has given it to him along with the commandments, so that a man forgets obedience again, because he's so busy with his appearance. Women in particular do a great deal for their appearance, so obeying an industry prepared to go to any lengths, whose products constantly contradict one another, otherwise why would there be so many? The country policeman only rarely thinks about his actions, with which we shall have to concern ourselves, prefers to stay on the surface of things, where he passes his comb through, drawing furrows in his dark-blond hair like hammers in a rock. The comb has been moistened first, on his head then it looks as if there's rain, from which one should have protected oneself. Now the country policeman has himself raised to quite a high rank, (Greed 8-9)

The key segment of a gender based approaches are the planning dimension where the safety of women in the both public and private places can be inscribed as a component of urban planning and management of public or private space. But we could not sustain what we expect because they are lot of incidents which is been happening still in day to day life. One of the young girls who is killed and thrown in lake because of her property.

Like the eighteen-year-old schoolgirl, unfortunately as a skeleton, in the forest, or the apprentice who wasn't even sixteen yet, unfortunately in shallow water and hence still intact, in the lake, in the lake. ? (Greed 41)

A thirteen-year-old has just reached out for the light switch, a long smeared trail of blood leads directly to the floor, where he will be stabbed more than twenty times. But the mother would rather weep for the killer than her boy, that way the weeping makes her happier. After all, she has more children, all exactly like this one, if in different age groups. ?(Greed 42)

Here comes another one, I can hardly follow her, she's twenty years older than young Mr. L., a quite different case, an envious type who's a bodybuilder today and in this way has at last created an entirely new body for himself, has become another in the truest sense of the word, so Mr. L., exactly, he shot his cousin, girlfriend and her mommy full in the face with his pump-action gun, but they didn't need their faces after that anyway. ?(Greed 44)

A few men who treats brutally of sustaining women because women are soft in character by nature and also they longs for pure love but a few men are taking advantage by the way and misusing them. Women longs for the love of men so she tries to impress him by her food or gift.

Please please, eat something, then there's dessert, then I personally will get carried away with you! Stop, now she has a good idea, she will offer the man, who has already rejected her offer and who preferred to consume his nourishment in the disguise of sausages and fried egg at lunchtime at home with mama, his meal in a completely new, unprecedented way. He will be so happy that he will be unable to control himself, like a spring which would be worthy of control, but meanwhile still has to wait for such a thing. And so she's going to serve his food, you won't believe it, well; then again it's not so original either: wearing exclusively the new, expensive lingerie she bought just for him at Palmer's in town. (Greed 81-82)

There is no use of manipulating women because men are very talented criminal in thinking than women. In the novel, Greed, a murderer who tries to manipulate a woman by his sarcastic way.

One should never let a man, even a murderer, off the leash once one has caught him, and one has to hold the end of the leash very tightly. That's why in general women like murderers of women so much. Because they have specialized in women. They look at the walls in prison and during this time can't be looking at other women. But there are certainly other reasons?

(Greed 41)

Gender-based violence and women's safety is increasingly recognized as a key health, it's a kind of development and human rights issue. Many unusual approach and strategies are used with varying degrees of success. In order to make meaningful progress in efforts to promote women's safety, effective and successful programmatic and policy approaches must be identified and shared all places. Sharing and promoting victorious approaches also increase the possibility that scarce resources for women's protection can be used effectively. Currently women are educated but not matured, they are grown physically but their status are very poor to survive their love is like a blind so that Gerti wants him to be with her side even she is ready to give her entire property.

This woman here is, I think, greedy for property, for whom property, however, was always refused, so silly, and who is now on her feet again, making for the hall window, perhaps she can get into the apartment again that way. But first she would have to go outside for a moment, where everyone would stare at her. Let him come. She's not going to come now specially. He'll see. He should take her and not the other, who hasn't even finished her training as an apprentice clerical worker. The woman has that on good authority. In place of all my property, he's not going to let himself be palmed off with something else, cheaper, thinks the woman, and certainly not someone who's hardly more than a child. (Greed 84)

We could live in an attic room and be beside ourselves with happiness, although there wouldn't be much space: happiness because the room was holding us so tight that we couldn't fall down, I'm so in love, what happiness, that there's you and me at the same time. There's no room here at all. I've got more than one room; I've got a whole house, where we can make ourselves at home. (Greed 85)

This global mapping exercise is essential to identify and learn from each other's efforts in order to build force for better programming and increased investment in work on women's safety. The current lack of responsiveness, communication and allocation between establishment results in organizations 'redesigning the wheel', copying of slight victorious approach, little direction for organizations interested in doing effectual programming, a wastage of precious resources and ultimately, little change in the lives of women so that few men tries to satisfy his own needs by betraying women.

When he's only just come, he hasn't even looked at me properly yet. Apart from my hole he hasn't seen much of me yet, the eternal cave tourist. And if he had thought a bit longer, he would perhaps have had something quite different to say to me than what he actually did say. (Greed 91)

I can play on you like no one else. I lay down everything—when, where and how often. I'm the best you've ever had, and there'll never be another either. I'm very conscious of my qualities, I always say: I am the sorcerer not the apprentice. Now the country policeman has to go back to Gabi again, who is sometimes bothered by the lack of desires of a child who already has everything? But today it has to be me, thinks the man. What am I to her? Perhaps the rascal with the dimples in his flesh, which she wants to bite into all the time. And she's allowed to move around all by herself under me. I would even like to watch her doing it. (Greed 97)

In order to find the issues and document tools for promoting women's safety from the global to local levels over the past years but rarely women are stepping to media for exposing their difficulties in life. Most of the women are tolerating their physical and mental pain out of fear. Gerti also tolerates her physical pain after intercourse but tolerates for love

Then suddenly she wakes up, as, e.g., today, sleepwalker that she has been, blind as she has been, on the stairs. A little blood is coming from her vagina. What has he stuck in there this time, bigger than a slap in the face, smaller than a tractor? Perhaps the neck of the beer bottle? What was it? And her clothes have trickled down the steps right beside her, in the wrong sequence, some are missing altogether. Furthermore the door is now locked from the inside, didn't I say that before? Did I forget it? Well well, who's in the flat now, in the house which both belong to her, the ground floor, too, of course and the cellar with sauna and wine racks and skis and hobby equipment? The woman sees herself kneeling completely naked in her misfortune at her own front door, a torn bit of clothing, which has soaked up something, clutched to her breast, her eye pressed to the keyhole. Is he really inside with someone else or is my eyesight making a mistake, has it got it wrong or is it suffering from strain?, with one as young as that, has he had the nerve to do something like that with her?, and really in my own home? I've got the essentials right in front of me and cannot deny it, but neither can I talk about it. I think, the man doesn't know how far he can go with the woman. Well, not that far anyway! But he gets going nevertheless. He would, however, prefer to take a fast car. Her role will be as front-seat passenger. (Greed 82-83)

Currently, educated women are raising their voice on solutions that survey respondents are employing to guarantee women's safety, to raise awareness and funding, to engage communities in collective safety efforts, and to implement preventive and protective measures to protect girls and women. Unless struggling women say out then they could not find it. Many men are thinking themselves that they are physically strong because they know well that the women are weak gender so a very few men are thinking that they can kill the woman if he feels angry on them like a slave.

The country policeman is sometimes so angry he could kill this woman. There she takes her proud claim on him out for walkies through the whole village. At the time when he had just met her, it had gone like this: She stood in front of him, as if fallen from the sky, in the road, embarrassed, sweating a little because she was in such a rush, even though the car had done all the work, by the driver's door of her car, ready, from now on, to make a happy face at the sight of him, the country policeman, not to take her eyes off him even under the greatest strain, and at the same time draw out his cock, its outlines ever more evident down there, before her inner eye, so that it should jump into her hand with the one sentence, I love you. (Greed 102)

Firstly, its important to strengthen the relationships among organizations to working on the issues of women's protection along with well-being across the world on anti-violence inventiveness, and to discover the role of narrow governments in the accomplishment of women's protection initiatives. Elfriede Jelinek, who compared those men with the loyal dog.

He looks for a lady to whom he could be married for two minutes, that's silly, none there. The dog finds a like-minded companion, sniffs around her genitals and then right away they hurry off together. The woman's former neighbor has long ago joined a club, which consists of dog owners. These are people who prefer dogs to other people. They get on, also invite each other around in turn. The woman takes her leave, relieved that the neighbor has found her doggy conversation group and has blended into this nice little circle, with many good wishes, visit us more often, don't you want to come for a coffee afterwards, no thank you, I just wanted to drop by the old place before you've all completely forgotten me, ha ha. A human formation strides through the play area of their animals, who mostly in playful fashion pounce on one another and form interesting alliances, just look at those two attacking a third, why on earth, no, they won't do anything, they won't do anything! Don't worry. They never bite, and if they bite today, then tomorrow they'll again never have done it, be like new (Greed 326)

Jelinek has a such an anger on those men who treats women disrespectfully. Her writing explores the recent incident of murder on women/adult girls. Men feels themselves as strong but she wants to break that in their mind by bringing those incidents in her writing. After the death of Gabi, Kurt wipes her vagina through his boot such a way he brought his arrogant on women.

Later we wiped out the young woman's vagina with a rag from the trunk, and this rag will surely have left behind fiber traces, we simply threw it into the bushes, but a couple of miles further on, no unfortunately we dropped it, where we happened to be standing, oh, if only we could remember! If only we hadn't been so lazy, to get rid of the rag, that would have been better, so that no impression of the indescribable stupidity of the wrongdoer would arise. (Greed 188)

Women's protection isn't only endangered or violated during war and conflict. It's endangered in their every day lives in both sphere including stable democracy. In world, 30 percent of women are struggling in sexual violence as well as 35percent of murders are happened by their close partners. Those all happened because of the women who lead her life like deaf and dump.

I haven't properly addressed them yet, from which really the return match should now come, normally in the shape of squeezing, pinching of nipples, and kissing somewhere or other, the sort of thing one does, as often as possible please, in the case of this man. With him I fear there's unfortunately too much biting as well, that's the most important thing for him, he could have been recognized by that. (Greed 130)

This flesh, for example, is so cold, brrr!, because for half an hour it had to lie naked on the steps down to the cellar and almost spend the winter there, you exaggerate. The sun can't yet properly penetrate the walls of the house, but no, it only seemed as long as winter to the woman, it wasn't longer than half an hour at the outside. (Greed 111)

Many women are like Gerti who tolerates everything for men. Gerti obeys him as a deaf even he also fulfilled whatever the needs from women.

She's still deaf in that ear, but she's already turning her head in his direction. There would then follow conversion of the property, and for that everything else will be laid down right away without asking, do you want furniture, please, go ahead. Do you want me to be laid down as well, with pleasure? (Greed 102-103)

Both have an ambition about the destination but women demolishes by absence of enlightenment but men could achieve to his right destination moreover they do not have any restriction to live like women.

No, I'm being unjust, the goal is the fast car and the beautiful house and several beautiful women. Of all the other treasures one only needs one of each, oh if one only had it already!, apart from money, there can never be enough of that. So I'm slandering young people, because I'm no longer one of them myself, and everybody remarks on it. But I'm generalizing again, people are incredibly different, and life is an altogether far too dirty business, particularly if, like me, one doesn't want to get one's hands dirty. Money that really interests us, but work, no. You will permit me to look at the carefully devised map of New York, as I write this. (Greed 140)

Female labors are experiencing the harassment in society because Women have a lower level of basic reckoning than men. Women should be equally trained in certain matters like controlling fear, be optimistic and make yourself busy in learning in all fields and implement without any hesitation. We cannot force anyone to do our wish which spoils both lives so educating is important for changes. Hence government must involve for changes in our society.

One can't even compel someone to wear a skirt instead of trousers. A woman sinks to her own feet, but is prevented from doing so by her bed; the dress too is not permitted to fall in a forward way. (Greed 340)
